

'Twas nineteen eighty-seven.....

'Twas nineteen-eighty-seven and all through the town,
Not a keyboard was clicking, not even a sound;
In Geneva schools, no computers were there,
For students to use, not anywhere;

Not at the high school, elementary, or even the middle,
No computers for students, not even a little;
It wasn't in the District budget, you see,
The budget was dry, there was no money;

But the parents, they thought perhaps there was a way,
To raise the money themselves to pay,
For computers for students in every school,
For students to become adept at this great learning tool,

Thus was born the Geneva Academic Foundation,
A proud Geneva community organization;
Since nineteen eighty-seven, that fateful year,
GAF has raised over a million dollars for gear;

Now GAF raises money for more than technology,
But also for art, music, math and biology;
GAF funds grants that enhance the education,
Of all Geneva students, our next generation.
